Tutoring Experience

Over the past 16 years, I have worked with a diverse range of students, helping them excel in A-Level and IB History. My expertise includes guiding students through key topics such as European revolutions, 20th-century global conflicts, and historical methodologies. I also prepare students for their extended essays and internal assessments, ensuring they achieve their potential.

In addition to private tutoring, I have collaborated with international schools in Switzerland, where I provided tailored lessons for students preparing for exams under the A-Level and IB curriculums. This includes helping them refine their analytical writing and source evaluation skills, which are critical for success in history courses.

My students consistently achieve top grades, with many securing places at prestigious universities. I take pride in helping them develop a deeper understanding of history while meeting the rigorous demands of their respective curricula.
